

Andrea Caloisi

Associate Director | Research, Thinking Ahead Institute

Andrea joined WTW in November 2022, and he is currently a researcher at the Thinking Ahead Institute, a global not-for-profit investment research network focused on mobilising capital for a sustainable future.

Andrea's career path has been marked by a passion for research and a focus on the asset management industry. He spent five years at a research firm providing market and strategy research to asset managers. In his current role, Andrea is committed to furthering his understanding of industry dynamics and trends by applying a systems thinking approach.

Prior to working for WTW, Andrea gained experience in energy and consulting firms. These experiences have shaped his perspective and added a diverse dimension to his skill set.

Andrea's academic journey reflects his commitment to a well-rounded education. He holds an MA in International Political Economy from King's College London, an MSc in Economics from Bocconi University (Italy), and a Bachelor's degree in Management and Business Administration from the same institution.